

Frank Mattern

Managing Partner,
Germany

Frank Mattern (50) has led McKinsey & Company's German office since January 2007. He studied business administration at Westphalia's Wilhelms University in Münster, Germany, and at the London School of Economics. He went on to earn his MBA from the Wharton School (University of Pennsylvania). In 1990, he began his consulting career with McKinsey. Only five years later, he was elected a partner. His election to Director followed four years later.

Right from the beginning, Frank Mattern focused his efforts on the financial sector. From 1997 to 2001, he led McKinsey's German Financial Services Group. Even now as a senior leader, his ties to this industry remain very strong.

His numerous projects for large German and European financial institutions led him to his second focus: business technologies. Increasingly complex challenges in a context where business meets IT prompted Frank Mattern to found the Business Technology Office (BTO) together with colleagues in 1997. He remained the BTO's global leader up to 2006.

Frank Mattern serves on the 31-member Shareholders' Council, McKinsey's highest global decision making committee. His clients include in particular European banks, stock exchanges, and IT companies.

Born in Krefeld, Frank Mattern has authored several books on business and finance topics. He is married and has three children.
